

INSPECTORS FOR REGISTRATION

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS NAME
MEN WHO WILL BE AT HEAD OF BOARDS—THE THREE DATES
UPON WHICH VOTERS CAN REGISTER THIS YEAR.

CLERKS TO BE NAMED

The inspectors who will have charge of the registration of the voters in the several voting precincts in Putnam county, this year, were named by the Board of Commissioners of Putnam County, at their regular session this afternoon. A law passed at the last session of the State Legislature provides that all voters must register before they can vote at the regular elections.

The days upon which voters may register are Thursday, May 9; Friday, Sept. 6, and Monday, Oct. 7. The registration will be in charge of the inspector, who will be assisted by two clerks. One clerk shall be a Democrat and the other a Republican. The clerks are not yet appointed.

The place of registration must be announced 15 days previous to the day of registration, and shall, if possible, the place of registration shall be the same on each of the three dates of registration.

Following is the list of inspectors appointed today by the Board of Commissioners:

At Shelbyville, Ind., the DePaw chapter of the Delta Zeta Greek letter fraternity, was entertained Saturday night and Sunday by Miss Edith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Wray, Miss Wray being a member of the chapter. A banquet Saturday night was followed by a slumber party and Sunday morning, several automobiles took the young women over the city. In the afternoon they returned to Greencastle. Those present were: Misses Minnie Platt, Hazel Locke, Jane Ryan, Gladys Goldsberry, Lela Brown, Mabel Hall, Marie Thrush, Helen Pearson, Elizabeth Johnson, Bertha Leech, Edith Fox, Elizabeth Johnson, Ruth Bridges, Ada Newhouse, Alice McLees, Anna Younger, Marjorie Grimes, Grace Hart, Evelyn Chenoweth, Laura Peck, Irene Balcon, Esther McNary, Stella Moore, Bernice Bassett, Genevieve Hurst, Muriel Nicely, Martha Raisenback, Josephine Morrison, Myrtle Grater and Pearl Brown.

Official Change on Monon.

P. L. McManus, former Inspector of Traffic, has been promoted to the position of Superintendent of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railway, former Superintendent P. G. Walton resigning. The announcement of the change was made in a general circular sent to all of the agents of the Monon Monday.

Following close upon this announcement came the news that Chief Train Dispatcher W. H. Gunsan, at Lafayette, had been replaced by W. F. Fulp.

Trainmaster McHugh, who is well known in this city, has also resigned and W. E. Murphy, who has been yard master at South Hammond for some time, was chosen to the position.

There has been much discussion over the inability of the Monon to get trains over the road on time for several months past, and that is said to have had much to do with the change.

BARS SEVENTH GRADE PUPILS

HEAD OF THE INDIANA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION
RULES THAT ONLY EIGHTH GRADE SCHOLARS MAY TAKE THE FINAL EXAMINATIONS.

QUESTION FROM PUTNAM

The fact that several seventh grade pupils took the eighth grade final examination, held in the several townships, recently, and passed the examination, caused County Superintendent L. G. Wright to write to the State Superintendent to ascertain if diplomas should be given them.

Mr. Wright received the following answer to his communication: "Supt. L. G. Wright, Greencastle, Ind.

Dear Sir:—Your question of March 27th is as follows: "Can a county superintendent issue a diploma for graduation from the common schools to pupils who have not completed the eighth year work, but doing the seventh year work at the time of taking the examination for said diploma?"

"It was certainly not the contemplation of this law to issue diplomas to sixth and seventh year pupils, and in my judgment, all pupils should be required to complete the eighth year work before such diplomas are issued to them.

"As a suggestion, the county board of education should pass a resolution which will eliminate the seventh year pupils from taking such examination. Furthermore, I fail to see how you can issue diplomas to seventh year pupils if you follow the instructions adopted by the County Superintendents' Association as found on pages 168-170 of the Uniform Course of Study for the Elementary Schools.

Very truly yours,
CHAS. A. GREATHOUSE."

At the suggestion of the state superintendent, the county board of education, at its meeting last Saturday, passed a rule barring any pupils, excepting eighth grade pupils from taking the final examination.

Will Move to Indianapolis.

The Indianapolis Star of Tuesday says: A large double house at 3048-50 North Illinois street has been sold through the George E. Brewer realty agency for $12,500. Richard A. Henry transferred the house and lot to Mr. and Mrs. Oscar H. Bowen of Greencastle, Ind. The house is comparatively new, having been erected four years ago.

Mr. Henry is removing from Indianapolis. Mr. and Mrs. Bowen are owners of the Commercial Hotel at Greencastle, and it is understood that they will move to Indianapolis to reside.

Prof. Hart's Lectures.

The lectures now being given by Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart, of Harvard University, are open to the public and our people are invited to attend and hear them. His subject is "America in the Orient," and the course is known as the Guy Morrison Walker Lectures for 1912. The lectures are given each evening from 6:30 to 7:30 o'clock.

SAM RALSTON TO ATTEND MEETING

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR, REPRESENTATIVE
RALPH W. MOSS AND OTHER PROMINENT POLITICIANS TO ATTEND DISTRICT CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

TO BE HELD IN BRAZIL

The Fifth District Democratic Congressional Convention, which has been called to meet in Brazil, Wednesday, April 17, at 1 o'clock, will have as speakers, the Hon. Samuel Ralston, of Lebanon, Democratic candidate for Governor; the Hon. Ralph W. Moss, of Clay county, Representative to Congress from the Fifth District, and W. P. O'Neal, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor of Indiana.

District Chairman James L. Randal, who today issued his official call for the convention, states that he has arranged for Mr. Ralston and Mr. O'Neal to be present and address the convention. It is assured that Congressman Moss, who will be nominated as candidate for Congress at the convention, will be present, and will make a speech of acceptance.

As far as the business of the convention is concerned, it is all cut and dried. Mr. Moss will be nominated and so the meeting really will resolve itself into nothing more than a good old-time Democratic love feast. Many of the Putnam county Democrats will attend the meeting.

Crawfordsville Journal: "Miss Lizzie Stump was brought from Greencastle Sunday to this city to the home of her sister, Mrs. David Payton. Miss Stump fell about three weeks ago and injured her left knee. Her condition is such that she is unable to walk—Miss Eva Williams, of Pinecastle, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams—Mrs. E. E. Ballard spent Sunday with her daughter, Miss Maurice Ballard, at Greencastle—Dr. L. Stanley returned to his home in Roachdale Saturday after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams."

Mrs. George Raines, wife of George Raines of Marion township, one of the county commissioners, is very ill, having suffered a nervous breakdown. Mr. Raines was unable to attend the meeting of the board of county commissioners Monday and the most important business was delayed until today in hopes that Mr. Raines would be able to attend the session today. Mrs. Raines' condition continues so critical, however, that Mr. Raines phoned this morning that he would be unable to attend the meeting and so Albert Gardner and Edward Houck, the other commissioners went ahead with the business.

This morning was one of the most disagreeable in weeks. The cold rain, accompanied by a bitter north wind, was chilling and disagreeable. The rain at intervals turned into snow and sleet. Those who predicted that the beautiful weather of Saturday and Sunday was the beginning of real honest to goodness spring were way off in their prediction.

Ed O. Kohl, formerly of this city, says the Crawfordsville Journal was injured in a wreck on the Wabash railroad at West Lebanon, is improving slowly. Mr. Kohl's shoulder is getting better, but he still suffers considerable pain in his back and neck. It will be quite a while before he will be able to take up his work again.

Lewis Zaring and Charley Reel, both of Washington township, were appointed viewers, and A. A. Lane was appointed engineer for the proposed C. G. Lee and others road in Warren and Cloverdale townships, by the county commissioners at their regular meeting Monday.

Calvin S. Rice, of Coatesville, has been granted a pension of $20 per month.

Get your supper with the Presbyterians at 22 West Washington street, (old Vermilion store) this evening. Only 25 cents.

The Art Exhibit.

Tomorrow is the last day of the Art Exhibit at the City Library. This fact is of more than ordinary importance because our people have shown much less interest in the exhibit than is complimentary to our citizens. Tomorrow should demonstrate that Greencastle is interested in and appreciative of art as well as literature. Let there be a goodly number of visitors on the last day.

WEIGHED AND ARE WANTING

TAFT AND TEDDY ARE OUT OF THE PRESIDENTIAL RUNNING.
IN THE ESTIMATION OF DR.
MUNHALL, BECAUSE THEY
AIDED IN BREWERS' GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

BREWER BUSCH GIVEN GOLD

At the North Indiana M. E. Conference, held at Wabash, Ind., Dr. L. W. Munhall, in his address at the men's meeting, stoutly declared that he would never vote for William H. Taft or Theodore Roosevelt as candidate for nominee on the Republican ticket, because of the fact that on the recent occasion of the celebration of the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Busch, at Pasadena, Cal., both Taft and Roosevelt had sent the big brewer pieces of gold as gifts. He severely criticised the Sunday baseball law in Indiana and the theater, because of the abbreviated dress of the women, and urged parents to keep their children away. Distillers and brewers were not only assailed because of the fact that they manufactured liquor, but that they were held responsible for the present day crime, the Philadelphia minister asserting that the adulteration of liquor was the cause of crime and explained that while in the past years there was much intoxication, it was not accompanied by the crime of today. "This country will never be overthrown by any other foreign nation," said the speaker, "but I fear for it because of liquor and licentiousness."

The suit of Mrs. Phylla Olds Cole and Mrs. Jennie Smythe against the City of Greencastle, in an appeal from the assessments against the East Washington street lots, which was begun Monday is still on trial and it is probable that it will be several days before the case is ended. The two women refused to pay the improvement assessments, alleging that their properties were damaged, rather than improved by the improvement of Washington street. The witnesses for the women are still being examined. Mrs. Cole testified that her lots were damaged more than $2,000 as a result of the improvement. Other witnesses substantiated the testimony. The defense will have to introduce its witnesses after the plaintiffs have closed their evidence and then the case will be argued.

Mrs. Emerson E. Ballard, of Crawfordsville, well known in this city, addressed the Council of Woman's Clubs at Terre Haute, on Monday afternoon. Her subject was "Facing the Problems." She told what had been accomplished in other cities, and especially with reference to work being done in behalf of boys and girls. The women of that city are interested in the dance hall problem, and an effort is being made to improve conditions. The weekly dances in the public dance halls have been discontinued and the women hope to provide some other innocent amusement to take their place.

A women's prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. W. Jones, East Seminary street, Wednesday, from 2:30 to 3:30, in charge of the pastor of the Presbyterian church. All women welcome.

The Presbyterian ladies had a large patronage at their dinner today, about 160 people being served.

Supper is Ready.

The Presbyterian ladies will serve a fine supper, including ice cream and cake, in the Vermilion store room, South Side Square, beginning at 5:00 p. m. today. Only 25 cents. Come.

GREAT CROWD TO HEAR W. J. BRYAN

JEFFERSON DAY BANQUET TO BE HELD IN INDIANAPOLIS ON NIGHT OF APRIL 12, PROMISES TO BE MOST SUCCESSFUL
EVENT—COMMONER MAY COM-MIT HIMSELF ON PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE QUESTION.

RECEPTION IN AFTERNOON

Special to The Daily Herald.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 2.—William Jennings Bryan will take the Democrats of the nation into his confidence at the Jefferson Day banquet to be held here April 12, and will reveal his position on the question as to who should be the national standard bearer this fall.

This announcement was made today by Fred B. Johnson, of the Indiana Democratic Club, who is in receipt of a letter from the Commoner, expressing his pleasure in being a guest of the club on the day before the banquet and his willingness to make the speech of the evening. With the announcement that Bryan will state his position frankly, the event this year assumes national importance. Leading Democrats of the capital are discussing the position of the Commoner with the utmost interest, in as much as Governor Marshall and Mr. Bryan will meet for the first time since the Indiana democracy endorsed the Governor for the presidency.

That Mr. Bryan is in sympathy with the Marshall candidacy was a matter of common gossip before the state convention. Bryan's outspoken opposition to Judson Harmon, of Ohio, lends color to the story that Bryan will come out into the open for the Indiana governor in his speech at the Jefferson dinner. It has been stated that Bryan's choice for president is a Democrat of the old school, strong enough for the old time followers of the party, and yet progressive in every sense of the word. Friends of Marshall declare that they believe that he measures up to this standard—a compromise between the radicalism of Wilson and the conservatism of Harmon.

According to Jefferson Day plans, which were completed today, the Governor and Mr. Bryan will meet at the reception to be given by the Indiana Democratic Club on the afternoon of April 12, at the club home, 22 East Vermont street. Prominent party workers from all over the state have been invited to attend this reception, which will be of an informal nature. Both the governor and Mr. Bryan will be at the club house all afternoon and, as the whole affair is to be given a decided Marshall tinge, it is pointed out that the declaration of Bryan for Marshall at the banquet is the only possible sequel.

Following the afternoon reception, the Democratic hosts will assemble at the Hume-Mansuer Garden promptly at 6:30 p. m. and the feast will begin at once. Requests for seats have been pouring in from all over the state. The number of guests has been limited to 1,000 and every mail is depleting the supply on hand. The price of $2.50 per plate has not deterred hundreds of the rank and file of the party from expressing their determination to attend. The privilege of hearing such a distinguished list of orators is held to be worth more than the price of the banquet, is the way in which many of the letters state the situation.

The list of speakers has been completed and, in addition to Mr. Bryan, who declares he will talk the gospel of Democracy for an hour and a half or two hours, Governor Marshall will make one of his characteristic addresses. Both Senators Kern and Shively have promised to speak. Congressman Korbly will represent the congressional delegation and Samuel M. Ralston will speak for the state ticket. It is expected that Mr. Ralston will sound the keynote of his coming campaign and will lay down the lines along which he will proceed this fall. James A. Houck of this town has been appointed to serve on the banquet committee. Many Putnam county Democrats will attend the banquet.

Reese Matson and Andrew Hirt went to the swamp near Manhattan to hunt duck this afternoon. Today was an ideal day for duck shooting and if there are any ducks in this part of the county the hunters should get some this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hirt, who have been spending the winter in Florida, arrived in Indianapolis Monday afternoon and telephoned from there that they would come to Greencastle today.

HE CONFESSES THE MURDER

SETH NICHOLS, A SAILOR, IS HELD AT PORTSMOUTH, NEW HAMPSHIRE, HAVING CON-
FESSED THAT HE MURDERED
DR. HELENE KNABE AT INDI-ANAPOLIS.

$1,500 PAID TO MURDERER

Seth Nichols, of Chicago, who has been in the United States Navy, was arrested at Portsmouth, N. H., Saturday, charged with carrying concealed weapons. After his arrest he had a nervous collapse, and confessed that he was guilty of the murder of Dr. Helene Knabe of Indianapolis. Nichols says he went to Indianapolis last October, from Brooklyn, N. Y. While in Indianapolis he met a man named Knight, and Knight was a good fellow and kept him supplied with drink and money.

One day he suggested that he had a job for him, and finally agreed to give him (Nichols) $1,500 for doing away with Dr. Helene Knabe. On the night of Oct. 23 Nichols was taken to the house where Dr. Knabe had a suite of rooms. He obtained admission to the building and during the night succeeded in getting into her suite and finding her asleep in bed he killed her while she slept, cutting her throat.

Leaving the building without being detected, he said, he was met by Knight and paid the money agreed on and put on a train for the East. Arriving in New York he went on a protracted drunk, and soon wasted the money and went back to his ship.

The confession of Nichols is not fully believed in Indianapolis, and the prisoner will not be brought to that city, until the facts are verified by the officers of the law.

Benton Curtis left today for Morocco, Ind., where he will join Joe Perkins, formerly of this town, but now of Indianapolis, in a duck hunt on the Kankakee marshes. The reports are that there are lots of ducks on the Kankakee just now and Mr. Curtis and Mr. Perkins probably will have a good shoot.

Parliamentary.

"This is all so sudden, Mr. Sampson," she said, with maidenly reserve, "and so unexpected, that although I confess I am not entirely indifferent to you, I hardly know what to say in reply to—"

"If you are in favor of the proposition," suggested Mr. Sampson, who, like Dick Swiveller, is a perpetual grand master, "you will please signify your assent by saying 'Aye.'"

"Aye," came softly.
"Contrary?"

"No!" thundered the old man, opening the door.
"The noes have it by a large majority," said Mr. Sampson, reaching hastily for his hat.

Literally.

"Did you see where a murderer in New York, sentenced to the electric chair, declared the joke was on him?"
"That sort of humor is shocking."

Confessions of a Tourist

Half the time in traveling one is dragged at such breakneck speed from one point of interest to another that one hasn't time to button one's shoes. The other half of the time one goes nearly mad from enforced inactivity.

Our two weeks in Japan was one frenzied flash of sight-seeing, at which we worked twelve hours a day. Charles was obsessed with a grim determination to "do" all that was to be done. At the end of the third day I was perfectly willing to take for granted every other Shinto temple and cherry tree and stone lantern in Japan.

Not until the ninth day did the worm turn. I had been trying to hint tactfully for some time that 12 hours a day of steady sightseeing was no more enjoyable than 12 hours a day of steady feasting, that one needed time in between to assimilate impressions; but my subtleties fell on deaf ears.

The eighth night we passed in a Japanese sleeper, a complicated form of torture not easily described. We dragged ourselves out at 6:30 in the morning after a sleepless night of torment, and began our weary round of sightseeing. It was at 6:30 that evening that the worm, which was I, turned.

I was hungry, tired, cold, wretched, bedraggled, with every nerve crying out for shelter; a hot bath, clean clothes and bed. The wind, which at all times blows bleak and dust laden in Japan, had been tugging all day at my hat and hair. When Charles said we would now visit the Sacred Island I replied:

"We will do no such thing. We will now go back to the hotel and have dinner and go to bed."

And we did.
We are now on shipboard, five days out from Yokohama, with the usual contrast of nothing to do except criticize our fellow-passengers.

Some time I am going to write a realistic account of Japan to offset the innumerable sentimental accounts that are in circulation. The first revelation I shall make is the fact, which the Lafcadio Hearn enthusiasts all ignore or overlook, that 97 per cent of the Japanese populace have colds in their heads and snifle.

The usual sentimental gush, as you know, is this: "What wonderful little people the Japanese are! You know, they don't heat their houses; the bathes all the year around in the open air, and they wear the same clothes summer and winter!"

They do. And they all snifle.
I will try to explain the Japanese idea of physical comfort. You arrive at a Japanese hotel for luncheon. The smiling proprietor and his staff greet you with a dozen bows apiece and in drawing of their breaths. You are ushered into a frigid mausoleum, which is the parlor. In half an hour luncheon will be served. In the meantime you pace up and down and wish you might discover a mirror or a wastebasket or a place to powder your nose.

Is anything lacking to your honorable comfort and pleasure? Ah, it shall be at once attended to! Suiting the action to the word, the proprietor ceremoniously bows himself out. Soon a damsel in kimono and wooden sandals shuffles into the room, knocks her forehead three times on the floor, draws in her breath and triumphantly places a sprig of cherry blossoms in a yellow vase!

The chief difference between home and Japan seems to be this: When our old crabapple trees and Thompson's two cherry trees bloom we remark: "How nice!" and go out and sniff at them enjoyably on Sunday afternoon and bring in a spray for the table. When two cherry trees bloom in Japan the mikado declares a national holiday, the whole nation goes en fete; the schools are dismissed, processions are held day and night; Japanese poets with fillets in their hair charge up and down the land, chanting their verses, and 600 American tourists photograph the phenomenon.

We landed in Tokyo in the midst of one of these festivals on a typically bleak, raw day while gusts of chill rain and wind swept the streets. A concourse of mad poets, school children, runners, wrestlers and other supernumeraries were lugging a Shinto temple through the streets, dancing and chanting around it and flitting peans of praise. They all looked blue and half frozen. And they all coughed and snifled.

In the evening we saw a geisha dance. I am glad to have seen it. I am sure the first thing every woman I know who has been to Japan will say when she sees me is: "Oh, my dear, and did you see the geisha? Wasn't the dancing perfectly fascinating? The most charming thing, I believe, in Japan! But then, of course, all of Japan is charming, isn't it?"

I can reply, yes; I saw the geisha. Aside from that satisfaction I don't know why one should care to see them.
Imagine a line of shuffling bolsters, with a sash around the middle of each, sliding out upon the stage on end and striking one deliberate, silly posture after another, while a side line of impassive objects, seated cross-legged on the floor, twang comb music and emit spasmodic caterwauls and you have the world-famous geisha.—Chicago Daily News.

CAME BACK TO HIS MEMORY

Long Years of Captivity Had Not Effaced Early Teachings From Mind of Elephant.

The following is an instance of an elephant's good manners and of the tenacity with which an idea once received by him adheres in his memory.

When visiting the London Zoo, an Englishman who had seen service in India got permission for his children to ride on one of the elephants. After the ride he wished to give the beast a bun and to make him say "Please," using in this connection the phrase "Salaam kuro" (make a salaam).

The man animal regarded the man gravely for some time, eagerly eyeing the bun in his hand. At last memory came to the pachyderm's aid, and up went his trunk, and he made a most correct salaam.

The beast's keeper was much astonished, asking what the performance meant. The Britisher explained that it was a point of good manners for an elephant to raise his trunk up to his forehead if anyone was going to feed him, and that frequently elephants would ask in this polite manner for something when they encountered anyone who seemed likely to offer them food.

The keeper assured the visitor that he had never seen the elephant do this before, and that he had been in charge of the beast since its arrival from India a long time since. For 17 years this animal had never heard these words, and had always taken his food without this mark of good manners.—The Sunday Magazine.

POINT THAT ATTRACTED HIM

Vegetarian Dinners Had at Least One Good Idea That He Could Appreciate.

After steadfastly declining many invitations to public dinners a man astonished his friends by attending three vegetarian dinners.

"Are you a convert?" they asked.
"I am not," said the man. "I go because the vegetarians have one custom that deserves to be encouraged. Their speechmaking precedes the dinner. Anyhow, it did at the three dinners I attended. That is a most commendable custom. It ought to be adopted at all dinners. Everybody is in a hurry to begin eating, and they don't take time to meander through a lot of dull speeches."

"I don't know why the vegetarians reversed the usual order. None of them that I asked could tell. Personally, I think it is because they are so anxious to get away and order a square meal somewhere after their appetites have been whetted by their own little snack that they can't wait for the speaking. I may be wrong. But the speeches are put out of the way first. That is the main thing."

Why They Can Spell It.

"Before I went to Europe," said the school teacher, "it was one of the mysteries of my profession how every British child enrolled in our schools came to be authority on the spelling of chilblains. Teachers might hesitate over one 'i' or two, the children never. They might make orthographic mess of the simplest one syllable word, but the tiniest tot from the British Isles went to the head of the class on chilblains every time. One wintry month in those same islands told me why. It is the word they saw oftenest. In drug stores, in clothing stores, in shops of all kinds cures and preventives of chilblains are universally advertised. Owing to the exigencies of the climate there is a regular chilblains literature presented for those children's absorption, so no wonder they know how to spell their universal affliction."

"Trust God and Sally."

The worthy people of the historic town of Newark, Nottingham, England, have lately been much exercised in their minds regarding the selection of a motto to go with the borough arms. Ultimately it was decided that the motto of the town should be the historic remark made by Major Smith in 1646, "Trust God and Sally."

It was in that year when Newark was surrendered to the Scottish army after sustaining three sieges during the civil war, and the remark was made to Lord Bellayse when the fortunes of King Charles I were at the lowest ebb. The word "sally," of course, as used in Newark's motto, means to rush forth, leap out, or issue suddenly.

Brief Census.

In a certain town of Vermont there was a lively widow maintaining a boarding house, who was joined in that enterprise by her brother, a widower. Now it so chanced that their very first guests were a young widow and her father, who had recently lost his second wife. An agent from the associated charities came to investigate a case of distress in that neighborhood, and this was the first house she hit upon.

"Of whom does your family consist?" she inquired of the mistress.
"All remnants!" was the reply.

White Plymouth Rock Cock.

late years have been high in price if not in quality, says a writer in the Baltimore American. The difference between what I received and what cockerels of that age would have brought, was my pay for spending about five minutes each to caponize them in July.

Chicks hatched in the natural season are much easier to raise than those coming earlier or later, and in my experience either pay just as well. But I plan the marketing in a somewhat unusual way. I keep Plymouth Rocks of a light pullet mating, because then I can tell the sex when they are only a day old. Then during the months of May and June I sell as baby chicks all the pullets as fast as they are hatched. When you find a fellow who has not hatched quite as many chicks as he had planned, it is right easy to sell him baby chicks by just saying that you will pick out all pullets. That gets them nicely out of the way.

POULTRY HANGER IS USEFUL

Device Found Quite Convenient by Eastern Poultrymen in Holding Fowls While Killing.

Here is a device which poultrymen of Boston have found very convenient in holding fowls during the killing process. Nothing could be simpler or more effective. It consists of a string and a thin disk of wood hung from a nail, as shown at a in the drawing herewith, says the Orange Judd Farmer. When to be used the fowl's legs are brought together in a horizontal position, as shown at b, and the disk passed around them as indicated by the heavy dotted line. The disk is then placed beside the legs, but beyond the vertical part of the string. Now the fowl is lowered and allowed to hang head downward, as indicated at c. If applied in this way there is no danger of the fowl working loose. To release the bird the position is reversed and the disk slipped to one side.

POULTRY NOTES

A flock of birds neglected are money losers.

The poultry needs plenty of green feed all the time.
Breeding fowls to be healthy and prolific should not be pampered.
Ducks need to be fed only twice a day if they are allowed a good grass range.

If the eggs are a little pale in the yolk, a trifle more corn will deepen the color.

Chickens that have to hunt and scratch for their feed are seldom troubled with leg weakness.

Dry wheat bran along with chick feed is fine for young chicks; it keeps their bowels in good condition.

It is not just what we will gain this year that counts; it is rather what course to follow in a series of years.

Once a week give the drinking dishes a scrubbing and scald with hot water in which a small quantity of common baking soda has been dissolved.

To reap profits from poultry the flock must be separated into pens of small numbers. Overcrowding is one of the greatest mistakes, and this has been demonstrated.

The KITCHEN CABINET

W ORRY less—work more,
Waste less—give more,
Preach less—practice more.

Some one has well said that the optimist is the man who makes lemonade of the lemons that are handed to him.

WHEN EVERYTHING GOES WRONG

Just to leave your work and your worries—your dishes in the sink, your beds unmade, your marketing undone, and, if need be, your doors unlocked—and go forth into the great outside world, is to run with eager feet toward peace. It is good to go and see a friend and talk it over; but it is better to go out under the sky and forget it. Let the unburied world of nature preach to you of steadfast peace and growth under unceasing change. Let the big, empty sky replace the cobwebbed ceiling of your house-bound consciousness, flood the dark places with wholesome sunshine. When you go back to your dishes they will almost wash themselves, for all the good fairies out-of-doors will come home with you and lend a willing hand to your work.

Try Some Changes In Potato Cookery.—We should all be as ambitious as the gentleman who was told that there were over two hundred ways of cooking potatoes. He replied by saying: "I am going to learn them all. I already know two."

Buttered Potatoes.—Cut potatoes into eighths or quarters and parboil, drain and finish cooking in butter, turning often to give them an even brown. Add salt and cayenne for seasoning. They may be baked in a paper bag and are hard to equal for flavor, cooked in that way.

Relly Potatoes.—Have ready one quart of cold cooked potatoes cut in pieces the size of small beans. Put the potatoes into a hot skillet with three tablespoonsful of fat in which a small onion and three green peppers have been cooked. Add a cup of thick tomato, sifted. Season with salt and pepper and cook until dry. Serve with fish or cold meat.

Sugar Potatoes.—Parboil and cut in fourth-inch slices good sweet potatoes. Simmer for an hour or more in a sirup made with a cup of white sugar, a fourth of a cup of water and a teaspoonful of butter. Baste the slices and let the sirup cook away before serving.

ECZEMA QUICKLY CURED WITH "ZEMO"

A TRIAL TREATMENT FOR 25c

The makers of ZEMO—the celebrated eczema and skin cure—have placed on the market a trial treatment package consisting of a generous bottle of ZEMO, a trial cake of ZEMO SOAP and a 32-page booklet "How to Preserve the Skin."—This entire package to be sold at 25c, so that everybody can test the true healing cleansing properties of ZEMO. We have received a good supply of these trial-treatment packages and urge all those troubled with Eczema, Pimples, Itching Skin, or any other skin or scalp disease, to come here and get the ZEMO trial treatment. We heartily endorse and recommend ZEMO and ZEMO SOAP to all persons suffering from any form of skin or scalp trouble. It is a clean, soothing, healing wash and a sweet antiseptic soap that does not glaze over the trouble like salves, powders and greasy lotions, but penetrates to the very root of this trouble. ZEMO stops the itching at once and opens the pores and draws out the poisonous accumulations to the surface of the skin leaving it clean and healthy. Get a trial treatment of ZEMO today—you'll find it the best 25c investment you ever made. A. Cook Drug store.

One on the Captain.
A woman who was about to start on a trip to the southern part of the world was advised to be sure to look for the equator. On board the vessel, she approached the captain and told him she would be greatly obliged if he would point out the equator to her. After a while he told her they were drawing near, and gave her the use of his telescope. Pulling a hair out of his head, he held it in front of the telescope and said to her: "There is the equator. Can you see it?" "Oh, yes, yes," said she, excitedly, "and there's a camel on it!"—Harper's Weekly.

WAR REMINISCENCES

BLOW UP CONFEDERATE FORT

Exciting Incident in Battle of Petersburg, Forty-Eight Years Ago, Is Told by Veteran.

The effect of a difficult engineering operation in the Civil war, involving the blowing up of Confederate fortifications, was witnessed forty-eight years ago by Frank D. Thompson, an architect of Oak Park, who was a cavalryman in the 13th Ohio volunteer regiment. The explosion, which occurred early on the morning of July 30, 1864, provided an opening through the defenses of Petersburg, Va., which, however, the Union forces were unable to hold.

"The Union army lay in front of Petersburg," said Mr. Thompson. "For weeks Col. Henry Pleasants of the engineering corps had been preparing to make a breach in the fortifications. From the river on one side and around the town, almost to the river on the other side, the earthworks of the defenders extended, broken here and there by a fort. Our earthworks were raised in some places not much more than 100 yards distant. The place chosen for making the breach was near the Petersburg cemetery. Here our line was 133 yards from the walls of the fort and was approached from down the hill by a covered ditch. Beyond the line a tunnel had been driven into the hillside, extending under the fort, and at the end of the tunnel had been placed four hoppers, each containing a ton of powder. The mine was to be exploded with a fuse laid along the tunnel.

"We of the 13th Ohio knew nothing of what was going on. We had been out on picket duty all day July 29 and got back to the line in the afternoon. We were dismounted and sent with our carbines through the covered way to the line. It was about 9 o'clock in the evening when we took this position. Our only knowledge of what was going to happen was our order to charge at the sound of the signal gun. We expected this at 3 o'clock in the morning. Three o'clock came and passed and it was not until 5 that we heard the signal gun.

"As we afterward found out, the fuse had been lighted, but had burned only half the distance, not much more than a stone's throw. There had been a call for volunteers to go into the tunnel and light the fuse where it had burned out and one man was chosen from among the many. He fired it and got safely out of the tunnel before the explosion.

"There was force in the explosion. The earth heaved under us we were so near, but it did more than heave at the fort. Up into the air went everything, earth and heavy timbers and the bodies of men, and before the debris had all fallen to earth we had covered the intervening distance and were in the breach. The fighting was hard inside the walls. The enemy drove us back, but we returned to the fight, only to be finally repulsed at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At about this time I was shot and badly wounded, and lay on the field under the July sun and the stars that followed until, in the morning, I was taken up and carried to the hospital at City Point."

Did They Run?

General Sherman always said with pride that the army of the Tennessee never retreated. They started in at Memphis, and came out at Charleston and Wilmington in a fourth of the time that it took the army of the Potomac to see-saw back and forth between Washington and Richmond. One day after the war the general said that he was talking with a veteran from the army of the Potomac. The soldier was describing the big fight of Hooker at Chancellorsville.

"Did the rebels run?" asked Sherman.

"Did they run?" repeated the soldier. "Did the rebels run? Great Scott, I should say they did run! Why, general, they ran so fast that they had to run three miles to get out of their way, and if we hadn't thrown away our guns they'd run all over us sure."

NEEDLES ALWAYS IN PLACE

Dainty Book for Sewing Room That May Be Constructed From Remnants of Material.

Needle-books rank among those small articles that can be made in spare moments from almost any little remnants of material and should not be forgotten when work is being prepared for bazaars.

We give, therefore, a sketch of a dainty little article of this description carried out in pale green silk and edged with a dark green silk cord of a fancy pattern carried into the two little loops at each corner. On the left hand side a conventional floral design is worked in pale pink silk, and the word "Needles" fills up the remaining space.

Diagram "D," on the right hand side of the sketch, gives the floral design in detail and shows the way in which it may be worked. The case is lined with pale pink soft silk and fitted inside with a number of "leaves" of flannel cut into points at the edges and secured in their place with a fine silk cord tied together at the back of the book, the ends being knotted and frayed out into tiny tassels. Diagram "A" shows the interior of the book.

The cover should be stiffened with two pieces of cardboard sewn in between the silk and the lining, and in making the book, these can be sewn together and the book firmly stitched down the center, then the two pieces of card can be slipped in in the manner shown in diagram "B," and the lower edge sewn together.

"C" and "C" in diagram "B" indicate the two pieces of cardboard.

AIM TO SUIT INDIVIDUALITY

Colors and Styles Must Be Adapted to the Wearer to Secure the Best Results.

It is almost unconsciously that one notices that the shop windows which make our cities so spectacular and delightful are showing prophetic visions of what we are to be within ever so short a time. A gaily colored hat of soft olive and old gold holds us fascinated. We long for the will power to walk on, but it lingers in our memory. How often has the woman of courage admitted that she could have passed by bravely any other hat, but the peculiar fascination and need of that one had held her fast! Yet why should she hesitate when she sees what suits her taste and individual style? The woman who would be well dressed must consider seriously colors that blend with her hair, her eyes, and her general appearance; for the girl and woman of golden coloring brown and the soft shades of green are never failing delights, while silver grays and olives cannot help but tempt the fortunate possessor of gray hair.—Harper's Bazar.

Making Irish Crochet.

A clever woman, who supports herself by making Irish crochet lace at odd moments, always learns to make the new patterns first by doing the work with a coarse hoop and fine wrapping cord.

When thoroughly familiar with the intricacies of the pattern, she can do the work with the fine thread without danger to her eyesight and very much more rapidly than it could be done if she was working on an entirely new design.

The coarse lace made of the wrapping cord is used to trim linens and cretonne covers for the bureau and tables.

When she wishes to copy a new pattern from a small illustration in a book or magazine, she uses a powerful magnifying glass. Then the stitches can be counted without any trouble or without danger of straining her eyes.

Flat and cross-stitch work are treated in the same manner.

Coat Lengths.

Regarding the long coat, the length varies. There are coats that are cut away from the waist line in front and extend to the bend of the knee in the back; others that extend half way to the knee, and are cut straight around the bottom and still others, quite long, that are open up the front, showing the skirt to the waist line, above which they are slightly double breasted.

For the Hair.

Fashioned brooches or cameos will make exquisite hair ornaments. For instance, a pink cameo may fasten a bandeau of pink metallic ribbon. Or a lapis lazuli brooch and earrings that match may ornament a bandeau made of king's blue tulle. Pearl brooches and earrings look well on a velvet band of any color.

DENTAL CLINICS IN SCHOOLS

Many Large Cities Take Up Matter of Caring for School Children's Teeth.

(By LUTHER HALSEY GULICK, M. D. Copyright by Ladies' Home Journal, 1911.)

In Berlin, London, Boston and many other communities there has grown up a resolution to see to it that the children's teeth are kept in order. In Germany the authorities spend an average of twenty-five cents a year on each child in caring for the teeth of all schoolchildren. Dental inspection is compulsory in Germany, and more than thirty cities support free dental clinics for the schools. These clinics supply not merely examination and treatment of decayed teeth, but also instruction to parents and teachers, which they, in turn, impart to the children. The results that have followed this work, as observed in Strasburg, where it started, prove that a "healthy mouth means a healthy body." School absences have diminished greatly, the general health of the children has been raised and their standard of mental attainment has greatly improved.

The expense of this work is met by the school authorities because it is cheaper to do so. I dislike this argument of cheapness, but still it is a real one. It is cheaper to keep the children's teeth in order and get the children through school on time than to pay for the extra six months' instruction. The school board of Findlay, O., employed thirteen dentists last autumn. By having that number it was possible to go over all the teeth of all the children during the year. The dentists were employed on the ground that it was a saving of money to care for the children's teeth.

Moreover, there are other reasons why this matter of the care of the teeth is important. Let me mention an economic reason. I know a man whose stenographer was most rapid and accurate in her work. She could take an address that was not expressed in uniformly good English and rewrite it adequately and gracefully; but her breath was something which must be left to the imagination to describe. It was so unpleasant to be in the same room with her that she could not be retained.

Now the breath under ordinary conditions of good health is odorless. The air that comes from the lungs under normal conditions is without smell. When a person has an offensive breath it is usually because there is something decaying in or about the teeth, the tonsils, or the back part of the nose. The most common of these causes is that the teeth are not kept free from decaying substances.

Furthermore, the appearance of a person's teeth is one of the ways by which we form our judgments of that person. It is not merely a question of physical appearance; it is a question of the sense of self-respect. It is one indication of what a person thinks and feels about himself. Many a young man's career and even his success in life have been entirely changed by the handicap of a small, receding chin, which could have been developed in perfect balance and harmony with the other parts of his face had attention been given to it at the right time.

CARE OF INFANT'S MOUTH

Importance of Preventive Treatment to Insure Good Teeth in the Child.

To the uninstructed it may seem unnecessary to take any steps toward preventive treatment in the mouth of the infant that its teeth may be better, but it is highly important not only that the process of teething be carefully watched but that the period of development should be in a measure kept under observation. Calcification of the first set of teeth begins about four months before the child is born, and it takes nearly a year before the process is completed.

The nutrition of the tooth during the first four months of its formation must come from the mother directly as the child is yet unborn and it can have no other source of supply. It is evident then that the mother should be provided with such nutrition, in quality and amount, as may be required to furnish the growing unborn child with the lime salts needed for building up good teeth.

The newly born infant should be properly bathed and prepared for its new environment by a skillful nurse, as much depends on how the child is cared for during the first few hours of its life. One cause of the great infant mortality among the poor in crowded cities is the lack of proper care of the newly born. The modern physician recognizes the fact that during childhood there is great liability of the mouth, throat and air passages of the child becoming filled with fluids from the womb which should be removed by irrigation and suction syringes. If allowed to remain fermentation and infection follow and the child is seriously handicapped at the start as its ability to get rid of even the natural waste products at this time is very feeble. The mouth and nose especially should be as effectually cleansed as possible and in some cases the stomach should be emptied with the stomach pump so that the food may not be spoiled at the very outset. The mucous membranes of the respiratory and intestinal tracts at this time are exceedingly tender and liable to injury and disease and therefore care should be exercised in using any kind of manipulative treatment. Strong antiseptics are equally objectionable and for the same reason.

Probate Cause No. 3515.

George Skelton, administrator of Estate of Francis M. Sanders, deceased, vs. Sarah F. Dunn, et al.

In the Circuit Court of Putnam County, Indiana, March Term, 1912. To Susan F. Dunn, James Dunn, Isaac Sanders, Sylvia Sanders, P. Marion Sanders, Florence Sanders, David P. Sanders, Flora Sanders, Elcie Thorp, Lee B. Thorp, Musa Ashby, William E. Ashby, Grace Dulick, Awry W. Dulick, Sylvia Walters, Milton E. Walters, Elizabeth Young, Albert Young, Ray Young.

You are severally hereby notified that the above named petitioner as Administrator of the estate aforesaid, has filed in the Circuit Court of Putnam County, Indiana, a petition making you Defendant thereto, and praying therein for an order and decree of said Court authorizing the sale of certain Real Estate belonging to the estate of said decedent, and in said petition described, to make assets for the payment of the debts and liabilities of said estate; and that said petition, so filed and pending, is set for hearing in said Circuit Court at the Court House in Greencastle, Indiana, on the 12th judicial day of the March Term, 1912, of said court, the same being the 18th day of May, 1912.

Witness, The Clerk and seal of said Court, this 25th day of March, 1912.

ARTHUR J. HAMRICK, Clerk.

W. M. Sutherland, Attorney.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate.

Notice is hereby given to the creditors, heirs and legatees of Joseph L. Jewett, deceased, to appear in the Putnam Circuit Court, held at Greencastle, Indiana, on the 3d day of April, 1912, and show cause, if any, why the Final Settlement Accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs are notified to then and there make proof of heirship, and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, The Clerk of said Court, this 5th day of March, 1912.

ARTHUR J. HAMRICK, Clerk Putnam Circuit Court.
3t—S-D—March 15th.

To the Tax Payers of Putnam County

Notice is hereby given that the taxes levied for State, County, School, Ditch and other purposes, in Putnam County, Indiana, are due and payable at the Treasurer's office of said county, in the City of Greencastle, in full, or at the option of the taxpayer, one-half including Road Tax in full, on or before the first Monday of May, 1912, and the remaining one-half on or before the first Monday of November, 1912. When so much as one-half of the taxes charged to a taxpayer are not paid on or before the first Monday in May, then the whole amount will become due and delinquent, and the penalty attached.

Road Tax Receipts must be presented on or before the first Monday in May as the Road Tax is all included in the first installment. Road Receipts WILL NOT BE TAKEN in payment for second installment of Taxes.

The Treasurer will not be responsible for penalties and charges on delinquent taxes resulting from any omission of the person paying such tax to state definitely on what property in whose name and what township or corporation it was assessed.

The treasurer cannot make reduction in taxes, and cannot refund money after once paid in. All errors must be corrected by the auditor.

Examine your receipt before leaving the office, and see that all your property is described. Particular attention: Those who have lands and lots or other property in more than one township, must see that they have a receipt in full.

Call for property in name of owner, March 1, 1911. Tax duplicates are made up on that day and never change.

We desire to take this opportunity of asking the taxpayers to pay their taxes before the last days of taxpaying. Especially do we urge those who are interested in estates that are to be divided, or may pay part or all the taxes assessed in other names, or may have a question regarding their own assessment of taxes. It takes time to explain and adjust these matters. We cannot do this satisfactorily within the limited time of the last few days of taxpaying.

Finds Cure for Epilepsy After Years of Suffering

"My daughter was afflicted with epileptic fits for three years, the attacks coming every few weeks. We employed several doctors but they did her no good. About a year ago we heard of Dr. Miles' Nerveine, and it certainly has proved a blessing to our little girl. She is now apparently cured and is enjoying the best of health. It is over a year since she has had a fit. We cannot speak too highly of Dr. Miles' Nerveine."

MRS. FRANK ANDERSON, Conroy, Minn.

Thousands of children in the United States who are suffering from attacks of epilepsy are a burden and sorrow to their parents, who would give anything to restore health to the sufferers.

Dr. Miles' Nerveine

is one of the best remedies known for this affliction. It has proven beneficial in thousands of cases and those who have used it have the greatest faith in it. It is not a "cure-all," but a reliable remedy for nervous diseases. You need not hesitate to give it a trial.

Why He Was Late.

"What made you so late?"

"I met Smithson."

"Well, that is no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."

"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."

"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"

"Sure, that is what he needs."

Much Rubber in Rhodesia.

The vast extent of northern Rhodesia renders it impossible at present to estimate even approximately the extent of the rubber areas, but such evidence as is available points to the great prospective value of this asset.

Don't be surprised if you have an attack of rheumatism this spring. Just rub the affected parts freely with Chamberlain's Liniment and it will soon disappear. Sold by all dealers.

How a Child's Life Was Saved.

G. A. Baker, Carney, Michigan, writes: My little girl caught a cold that lasted over a year. We employed three doctors, none could help her. She got so weak she could not stand. We used Warner's White Wine of Tar. It cured her.

EARLY REMISENCES OF PUTNAM CO.

[By Andrew Sigler.]

Believing that some incidents attending the early settling of Putnam County would be interesting to many persons now living, as well as of some value in making up the general history of our county I propose to furnish some facts—with most of which I am personally acquainted—being, perhaps, the only person now living who was of the first batch of settlers in this county.

In the fall of 1820, my father, John Sigler, made a temporary residence near the bluffs of White River, that being at that time the western boundary of white settlements—intending to move farther west in the spring. During that winter, my father, with several others in company, made a trip of observation on foot, as far west as Sugar creek, northwest of where Crawfordsville now is, and to Racoon creek, a little east of where Rockville now is. Some who took that trip settled on Sugar creek, others on Racoon creek, while my father chose the present site of Greencastle as his future home—then, of course, an unbroken wilderness. Each of these localities was claimed by the different settlers as the most beautiful, and most promising of health and comfort. We chose Greencastle, mainly because my father thought it most healthy.

In the early part of March, 1821, my father and mother, with a family of six children—the writer being their second child, and then eighteen years of age—bade adieu to friends and our home at the bluffs of White River (about thirty miles southwest from Indianapolis) and boldly struck out in the trackless wilderness to make a home among the red men of the forest. We were accompanied by Thomas Johnston, (father of Hon. Archibald Johnston) and his son James; Jubal Dewees and wife, then just married.

In that day there were no highways or roads of any kind; no streams were bridged; no trees were felled; all the country west of White river was primeval forest as the handiwork of God and the growth of time had made it. With stout hearts and willing hands we made our way to our new homes, by following treeblazed trails, and when these failed us we kept our way by the direction of a pocket compass. These, with camping out at night, killing of wild game, and the frequent howl of the prowling wolf, frightening the smaller children, horses and dogs, made our trip sufficiently exciting to be exceedingly interesting. One incident I will mention:

The trails we had been following led us quite north of Greencastle, on Racoon Creek; nearer to Crawfordsville than to Greencastle. We there parted company with the friends going to Sugar Creek, and started down Racoon; soon camping for the night. It was late in the evening. As soon as we began to cook supper, the wolves smelled the roasting meats, and set up their furious howlings. At first one howled across the creek—another answered in a different direction—and another, and still others, until the woods appeared to be alive with them. Our horses were terribly frightened, and the dogs cowered at our feet. The wolves drew nearer and nearer to us, making the night hideous with their uproar. They finally ceased their noise except an occasional growl, which seemed meant for themselves, and not for us. But we knew they were near us in great numbers by the frequent gleam of yellow eyes in the dark woods around us. We left them to themselves, thinking not to disturb them unless they did us. We ate our supper and lay down to rest, on the ground around our camp-fire. As the fire began to die, the wolves came closer around us. We could see them, and hear distinctly their quick, sharp snaps as they seemed to bite for each other. This was no time for sleep; we wanted to see what the wolves intended, so we lay, with the stars looking down on us, looking out at the wolves as they still more nearly approached us. The fire was only a heap of coals and embers, with chunks no longer giving forth blaze of light. Some of us were almost asleep, when suddenly, a bold, daring fellow sprang into our very midst, and with snapping jaws, seized a cooked ham, which we had put into a sack, and made off with it. We all sprang to our feet, and with brands of fire and yells more terrible than howl of wolf, we so frightened him, that he dropped the ham and made off into the woods—the whole pack in close pursuit. For the balance of the night they seemed more frightened than we were, and kept at a safe distance, giving us no more trouble, other than that of frightful dreams.

Without any other incident to excite particular interest, we reached the site, where Greencastle nearly two years afterward was laid out—about the middle of March, 1821—nearly fifty-one years ago, the first whites who settled in Putnam county.

My father settled on the 16th section, a little northeast of Greencastle, on the farm now owned by Mr. Conrad Cook, the well known druggist of our now flourishing city. That same fall he entered and moved onto the farm now owned by William Bridges. Mr. Johnson built a cabin on the southwest corner of the 16th section, very near to where Mrs. Mattie Black now lives, cleared—(partly cleared), three or four acres of ground and raised a crop of potatoes, corn, etc. That fall he moved his family out. They used water from the spring known as the Grooms spring.

Mr. Dewees spent the summer in different, and very indifferent shanties. At one time his shanty was near the house now owned by Mr. Oliver Hensley.

He built a comfortable cabin and spent the winter on the lot now occupied by the First National Bank building.

Soon after we landed here, Mr. John Butcher entered and settled on a part of the land now owned by Reason Hammond, at the cold spring—about three-fourths of a mile northwest of where the court house now stands.

Mr. Arthur McGaughey settled near where Pleasant Garden now is, in April—a month after we did. But we did not know that fact for months afterward. On Eel River—some miles below where McGaughey had settled, Squire Athey, and some other families had lived for three or four years; south of the line of the new purchase. But their presence was not known to the settlers at Greencastle.

This, then, is the first settlement in Putnam county. These four neighbors, John Sigler, Thomas Johnston, Jubal Dewees and John Butcher located near together, and within less than a mile of the present public square. We knew of no others nearer than Coy. Bell, on Racoon creek, west of us; our friend—whose name I have forgotten, on Sugar creek, north of us; the Ballards, on White river forty miles east of us; and south of us we knew not that we had neighbors anywhere near.

I have lived in this county since it was first settled.

The above is taken from the Greencastle "Indiana Press" of the date of Wednesday, December 27, 1871. The paper at that time was edited by the late Howard Briggs. Mr. Sigler, who wrote the article, was the grandfather of Dr. Sigler now of Greencastle.

"SUNSHINE THROUGH THE DARK." (Biograph drama. Great) "CAIN AND ABEL." The story of Cain and Abel is too well-known to need repetition. In the film the biblical tragedy is followed out with adherence to the original story forming a splendidly realistic portrayal. This is a fine picture hand-painted. You will enjoy it. "HOW TEXAS GOT LEFT," (a fine Kalem Western drama.) Thursday night, April 4th, 1912, we offer a stupendous production of Thackerays "Vanity Fair." Complete in three full reels. Every character portrayed by an artist. In addition we will give several other fine reels of film making this one of the greatest picture city. Admission, 5 and 10 cents. Our music and singing will be fine. Don't fail to see Cain and Abel tonight. It's worth going to Indianapolis to see.
